▶ Accreditation

Accreditation

Rochville University is accredited by the Board of Online Universities Accreditation (BOUA) and the Universal Council for Online Education Accreditation (UCOEA). Rochville University has met the highest standards of reliability, integrity and quality of education as set by the mentioned accreditation agencies and is now a certified accredited member of BOUA and UCOEA.

Unlike regional or national accreditation bodies that provide accreditation to higher education institutes, based on their regional proximity, BOUA and UCOEA are international accrediting bodies that evaluate the quality of education for universities focused on providing executive education to working adults around the globe.

▶ International Faculty

International Faculty

Rochville University is proud to have thousands of experienced and highly qualified professors in its faculty with huge exposure to industry. Our faculty members have been educated at the world's best institutions, including the Ivy League universities, with more than 50% of them holding a PhD. Most of our professors regularly contribute to trade and academic publications worldwide and have great readership.

Students at Rochville immensely benefit from not only their knowledge, but also the years of industry experience and insight these extraordinary individuals possess. As a result, textbook instruction is effectively combined with real life situations and past experiences to deliver a unique, in-depth learning experience to the students.

▶ Alumni Success Stories

Nothing makes us prouder than being able to talk about the success of our alumni. Rochville University alumni have a head start over other university graduates, with many of them attaining high-level positions at different multinational companies. Some of them also continue their education to earn additional degrees.

Below are a few success stories of our graduates.

Karren Rachel

Medical Sales Representative – Pfizer

Before moving to NY, Karren was trying to get a suitable job but since her portfolio lacked proper credentials, she faced disappointment everywhere. She enrolled at Rochville University, took online classes and earned her bachelor's degree in sales marketing. Within months of graduating from Rochville University, she was hired as an assistant sales representative at a small pharmaceutical firm in New York. Today she is the head sales representative in Pfizer and believes that receiving a degree from Rochville University was the first step towards this rewarding career.

Nelson Cooper

Sales & Marketing Manager

Eight months back, Nelson had vast experience of sales and marketing but no degree due to which he had to work at supporting positions in his company. Nelson had almost lost all hopes in career advancement when he found out that he could study alongside his job at Rochville University. Nelson is delightful of the fact that a degree from Rochville has not only opened doors to endless opportunities, but has also given him a lot of self-confidence and satisfaction. Today, Nelson is working as a Sales & Marketing Manager at a renowned insurance company.
